Dear Mr Dorenberg

ENQUIRY: Me 262 AT THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF MILITARY HISTORY

Your enquiry of 10 February 2011 was forwarded to the Ditsong National Museum of Military History (previously known as the South African National Museum of Military History).

An example of a Me 262 B-1a/U1 two-seater night fighter is located at the Museum. It bears the identification number 'Red 8' and the werk nummer 110305. The aircraft was equipped with the FuG 120a Bernhardine which received coded information about the relative position of the fighter to an enemy bomber force. The information was relayed from a Bernhard ground station on a mini teleprinter set. This equipment, along with many of the other original instruments, was removed from the aircraft by the Royal Air Force prior to it being shipped to South Africa in 1947.

We, regretfully, are unable to supply you with the photograph you are looking for.

Yours sincerely

CEO
